

The day is saturday,the 7th of november 2015.
Since the world is going,we are also going

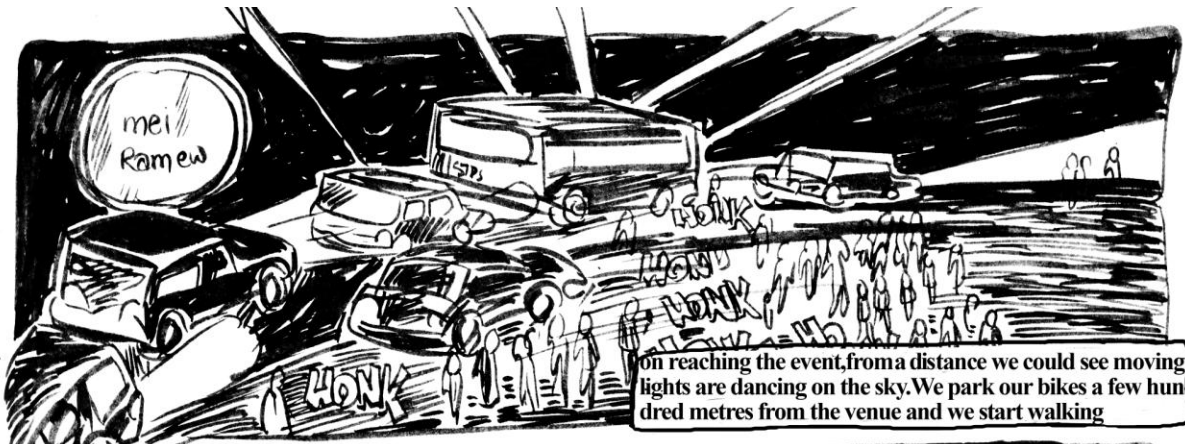

Myself,Rang,Ario,Jeff,Casper and Benji are heading towards Mawphlang,where the international food festival is happening.The road starting from Shillong is jammed with traffic from both sides. We were lucky to be on bikes

Excited,over expect of the event,we hold our patience with the traffic.Though our stomach keeps telling us that it is hungry the journey is getting dark on reaching the event, from a distance we could see moving lights are dancing on the sky. We park our bikes a few hundred metres from the venue and we start walking labong leh! its a huge crowd we get in and enter through the khasi heritage section for food. we search for something and end up clicking some photographs we took the emergency exit from the khasi heritage section it lead us to the main area of our destination. Foodstalls!

strangely,we find most stalls are empty.They say that the food is finished.only small pumpkins are lying around.It was only 5.30 pm

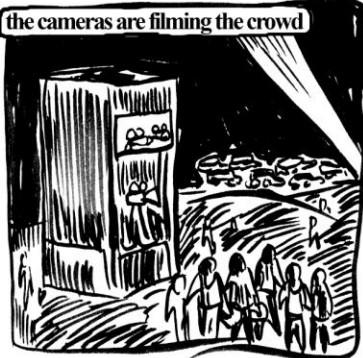

we and the crowd are wandering for food.Now I noticed that the the light is not dancing actually .it must be searching for food too we have to regularly treat our stomach with kwai that we carried along the stage was empty then.We decided to leave the cameras are filming the crowd while moving out,the dancing light direct us to a group of people selling their things these bahs are selling jadoh with variety of chicken,dohjem,dohsniang.They are locals from Mawphlang and their temporary stall is not an official stall of the food festival

3 we took each packet for ourself.The food save our day these bahs lighten up our Mawphlang trip mood They provide us what we didnt find from the event. Their jadoh is already a feast for for us

The weather is getting cold.We are heading home.The traffic is still packed. There are people and cars still going to the food festival.
